Roots of Living Futures

In Recognition and Protection of Cultural Traditions

The World Ayahuasca Forum responds to the urgent call of Indigenous Spiritual Leaders for a deep intercultural dialogue between ancestral and Western knowledge systems—one that honors and recognizes both traditional and scientific knowledge systems, with ayahuasca as a thread weaving this encounter. In these times of unprecedented global crisis, safeguarding ancestral knowledge systems means protecting cultures and territories.

This landmark gathering invites people from all corners of the world—in all their diversity: scientists, policymakers, Amazonian traditions, facilitators, integrators, and participants; everyone who has been touched by ayahuasca—to come together to share experiences, exchange knowledges, and build deep alliances.

From September 09-13, 2026, we will unite key actors in the field to sow seeds for living futures.

7 Reasons to Be Part of This Transformative Forum

Global Reach: 2000+ in-person attendees (Indigenous leaders, academics & researchers, policymakers, allies....)+ online presence.

Ethical Alignment: Showcase your commitment to cultural sovereignty, environmental justice, and Indigenous rights.

Historic Legacy: Be part of a paradigm shift that helps shape the future of safe, ethical and culturally rooted global ayahuasca practices.

Unprecedented Indigenous representation: Associate your brand with a global gathering co-created by and with Indigenous spiritual leaders, from vision to content.

A space for true dialogue: Support a forum that brings together sciences from different knowledge systems, arts, culture, spirituality, activism, and policy in meaningful exchange.

A decolonial process: Join this gathering of Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples where the process is Indigenous-led, and the work is, at its core, relational.

Influencing global narratives: Position your brand within a forum that redefines the global narrative on ayahuasca, shaping ethical use, safety, public policy, and sciences of sacred plant traditions.

Who we Are

ICEERS is a nonprofit organization with United Nations Consultative status, founded in 2009, that focus on the challenges arising from the globalization of traditional Indigenous medicines. For over 16 years, ICEERS has worked at the frontlines mitigating harms and defending rights—supporting over 390 legal cases in 47 countries, assisting nearly 2,000 individuals in need of integration and crisis support, and responding to more than 1,200 medical and drug interaction queries. ICEERS has provided harm reduction and integration education to over 1,000 practitioners and facilitated 60 workshops in a dozen countries, increasing safety and ethics through community-building processes that foster a culture of care, accountability and self-regulation. ICEERS has published over 100 scientific papers and educational resources, participated in dozens of United Nations processes, and worked with government agencies to support the creation of just policies. The organization has also provided technical support to Indigenous-led initiatives focused on biocultural conservation and Indigenous rights, and has convened three international ayahuasca conferences to foster global alliance and dialogue. Our vision is a future in which the stewardship of Indigenous medicines is guided by a collaborative, intercultural, and interdisciplinary movement on a global scale.

The Yorenka Tasorentsi Institute, founded in 2018 by Ashaninka leader Benki Piyãko, is an Indigenous-led center for ecological regeneration, cultural revitalization, and political advocacy. Located in the Brazilian Amazon, the institute blends traditional Ashaninka knowledge with innovative agroforestry and sustainability practices to restore biodiversity and support food security in the region. Yorenka serves as a hub for environmental education, Indigenous self-determination, and the protection of sacred medicines and ancestral knowledge systems. It plays a leading role in organizing the Indigenous Ayahuasca Conference, helping shape Indigenous-led agendas and strategies for biocultural rights. The institute also advocates globally against biopiracy and the commodification of Indigenous wisdom, emphasizing ethical frameworks grounded in free, prior, and informed consent, as defined by ILO Convention 169. Through its work, Yorenka has become an international reference point for intercultural dialogue and Indigenous-led environmental leadership.
